Shooters Survive Heat At Magnolia

by Navin R. Johnson

July's match was a rough one. Club President, John Heiter decided to go with four stages instead of five. That would prove to be a wise decision as the day wore on. The heat and humidity were real killers. Matt Moorer and Glenn Whitfield decided they'd rather work on our new steel targets with a hot welder than be out in that awful mess. Danny Warren helped them as well, but still came out and shot. These new targets are for the ICORE matches and our steel matches we'll be starting in November, so a big thank you to those guys. Classes for Open, Limited, Revolver and .22 will be the equipment steel match format. And, the cool thing is that you can enter as many classes as you want for just five bucks each.

Our good friends from Louisiana, North and South were at the match and they made quite a showing.

Thankfully, we had enough help to set-up, and tear-down to be out of our match before noon. Thanks to those that helped out; you know who you are.

To the match:

Limited 10 had just two shooters with Frank Farmer cruising to a victory over junior shooter Philip Womack.

Revolver division had a tight three-way race with Tommy Cabell winning one stage and pulling out the win. Cliff Cargill won two stages, but was reportedly suffering from a little heat exhaustion and just gave out on the last stage. Pat DeBerry also won a stage and was in the thick of things at 94.11%. Danny Warren took fourth shooting minor getting ready for the ICORE state match.

In Limited, Robert Konrady had a great match and whooped up on Bryant Chaffin just a bit taking the win. Scott Sims took the third spot, while Heiter finished fourth. Bill Klein wrapped up fifth with Bill Cheney right on his bumper in sixth. Doug Breaux rounded out the field in seventh place.

Production was once again the headliner with the biggest number of shooters. Jim Davis won all four stages, took the win and was third overall in the combined sort. New shooter, Brandon Thames came out of nowhere to grab second at 68.09%. Nice going Brandon! Scott Womack got a little boom happy with that Vanek Custom 2 lb. trigger, but still finished third. Richard Booth gets better and better and knocked out fourth. Tim Ward gave it another whirl and locked down fifth. New shooter, Tom Bagan had solid day taking sixth. Nancy Klein barely edged out Leah Ginn for High Lady.

Well, that's it. Now it's back to the Bahamas for some well deserved rest, drinks, chicks, relaxation, drinks and more chicks. Oh, and the trip to Vegas was a hoot, thanks Scott.

Just remember everyone: I'm having more fun than you are right now,
